

Be a force of nature

Change & Communication Manager

Do you want to be a key player in a high-priority business programme spanning across Denmark, Sweden and Finland? And are you a strong change agent with excellent communication skills? Then join Consumer Nordic's IT Roadmap programme where you will help improve the IT integration of our Nordic organisation over the next 2-3 years. The position is located in Stockholm and requires 60-80 travel days a year.

Change and stakeholder communication

Consumer Nordic is rolling out a large-scale business programme that will result in the implementation of a unified IT system across the organisation. As Change & Communication Manager, you will support the projects spanning across the Nordic countries and ensure that all departments involved are prepared for the implementation. This includes planning, executing and supporting stakeholder communication as well as training and supporting project managers.

Cooperating closely with our Change & Communication Manager in Denmark, you will be responsible for internal and external change and communication activities related to the programme. You will facilitate a constant information flow concerning everything from technical matters to progression schedules and ensure that success stories are shared through e.g. our intranet, website, newsletters and other channels.

Strong project management skills

You have a business or communication degree combined with solid experience with change and stakeholder management. You possess strong project management skills and have experience with running large and complex projects. Your planning talent and high degree of flexibility enable you to navigate efficiently in our hectic and constantly changing project environment. Being a creative communicator with a business-oriented approach you enjoy dealing with key stakeholders and handling a high profile programme with great management attention. You are determined and have the ability to render complex business scenarios into exciting communication products. Finally, you are fluent in English and at least one of the Scandinavian languages.
