You will have a significant impact on our performance. Imagine the scope of your career opportunities. Be a force of nature. Join us at arla.com/career.

Managing Product Portfolio Worldwide

You will join the Global Nutrition & Milk Powder Business, headquartered in Aarhus, Denmark. We are responsible for the global marketing of nutrition products under Arla Foods' own brands. The position gives you a unique chance to participate in the development of a truly global and fast growing business area. The position is limited to 10 month.

You will be the driving force in Product Management for our business and your overall responsibility will be to create efficient improvements through close cooperation with supply chain, factories, suppliers and brand marketing. You will be the factories main point of contact within the marketing team. This is to enable and ensure continuous efficiency gains through regular and frequent interaction. You will support the factories and the business by predicting short and long term manufacturing need – based on market demand.

You will also lead the continuous reduction of complexity in regard to the Global Nutrition & Milk Powder and ensure the systematic exploration of supply chain efficiencies outside the existing supply chain. Last but not least, you will be the driver of packaging innovation for Global Nutrition & Milk Powder. Therefore you will actively work with supply chain and external packaging suppliers to ensure that innovative packaging solutions are systematically explored.

The position is an attractive opportunity to be involved with FMCG marketing and strategy in one of Europe's biggest international dairy companies.

Marketing degree and experience

You hold a master's degree, HD or a related degree. You have minimum 3 years of experience from a similar product management position within the FMCG industry. You are an outgoing and independent individual with a flexible and analytical mindset.

You enjoy the challenges involved in handling a wide range of projects and tasks and are willing to assume leadership when required. You should also have a keen eye for details and a structured work approach. You have strong communication skills in both spoken and written English and Danish and are able to inspire others with your ideas.
